

Building today. To succeed tomorrow.

The first Littoral Combat Ship is on its way. And with it a new capability for the U.S. Navy. Built by a team that's proven itself through decades of shipbuilding experience and systems integration excellence. The keel has been laid. The hull and superstructure are erected. And each new day provides a better glimpse of what's to come. LCS. A fast, flexible, and survivable warship. Designed to take on threats that lurk in the littorals. LCS. So close, it can taste the water.
